BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Roncarelli Case

FRIDAY, JUNE 13, 1958

THE RONCARELLI CASE, REcently argued before the Cana dian Supreme Court, is vitally important in itself. It is still more important as it illuminates the Bill Rights which Mr. Diefenbaker proposes to introduce in Parliament.

Frank Roncarelli operated a profitable restaurant in Montreal and held a liquor licence. Because he befriended the Jehovah Witnesses and supplied bail to them when they were being prosecuted by the Quebec Government, Mr. Roncarelli incurred the anger of Premier Duplessis. As a result, his liquor licence was cancelled and his business ruined. For years he has been suing Mr. Duplessis for damages. Whether he is entitled to damages is the question which the Supreme Court is now considering.

The Court is concerned, of course, only with the law, but whatever the law may say, as interpreted by the Court, the Roncarelli case must raise a great constitutional issue in Parlia-

Mr. Diefenbaker has promised a Bill of Rights to protect Canadians from violations of their inherent civil liberties, including, presumably, their religious liberties. Clearly religious liberty is involved in the Roncarelli case, a citizen's business having been destroyed because he supported a certain religious sect. Under an effective Bill of Rights nothing of that sort could happen in Canada.

But Mr. Diefenbaker apparently does not intend to introduce an effective Bill of Rights. He says his legislation will be limited to matters under federal jurisdiction. If the Duplessis Government acted within its provincial jurisdiction in punishing Mr. Roncarelli a federal Bill of Rights would not protect him. That question of jurisdiction will be determined by the Supreme Court. No one can foresee the Court's judgment but it is easy to foresee more attempts by the Quebec Government to infringe the civil liberties sacred in other provinces.

The only serious threat to civil liberties, in fact, comes from provincial governments, almost solely from the Quebec Government of Mr. to rest with the Supreme Court.

Moreover, in exempting matters of provincial jurisdiction, it will admit that there can be-ten different standards of civil liberties in the ten provinces, ten different classes of citizenship, depending on the whims of provincial legislatures. This doctrine is abhorrent to all Canadians who regard themselves as citizens of a single, unified nation. Doubtless it is abhorrent to Mr. Diefenbaker as the leader of the nation. Why, then, does he hesitate to introduce a Bill of Rights covering all basic liberties in all provinces and asserting that Canadian citizenship is invariable, under Parliament's protection, throughout the nation?

He hesitates, of course, because he does not wish to guarret with Mr. Duplessis. For exactly the same reason (though it was befogged with local technicalities) the former Jib. legal technicalities) the former Lib-Government refused to consider a Bill of Rights at all. Nevertheless, some progress is being made. The Supreme Court slowly invalidated some of Mr. Duplessis' more objectionable stat-utes, including the notorious Padlock ground that they are on the

Some judges of the Court, not a majority, have gone further and upheld the famous doctrine of the late Chief Justice Buff, who argued that all civil liberties are under federal jurisdiction according to the preamble of the British North

If that doctrine were finally asserted by a majority of the Court, a Bill of Rights would be established automatically without act of Parliament. or to restrict economic relations with the Communist countries.

The question was raised on a rather nartechnical issue, the Kennedy amendment which would have eliminated the rigid prohibitions of the existing law. Mr. Knowland's doctrine is that in the cold war we should as respects economic matters act as we would towards an enemy in a shooting war.

Once Majority View

Although Mr. Knowland brought about the defeat of the Kennedy amendment by a margin of only one vote, it is fair to say that his fundamental theory has for long and until recently been that of the preponderant majority of the Congress.

We can say that the cold war, which has been latent since the Russian Revolution, broke out openly in July, 1947. The cold war began when Molotov, taking the Czechs and Poles with him, with drew from the Paris conference which was dealing with what was to become the Marshall Plan. A few months later, in March, 1948, the U.S. administration initiated a program for export controls designed to prevent the sale to the Soviet orbit of commodities which would strengthen its war-making capacity. 1950, as a result of the Korean war, the United States established an embargo on trade with Communist China. In 1952 our allies joined us in a system of controls which were stiffer than those applied to the Soviet Union.

As one of your customers, I do not feel especially important, however monthly payments amount to from thirty-five to forty-five dollars a month depending on the season, for several services—all in Victoria.

The knowledge that disturbs me in relation to increased costs of electricity here is that it is being priced out of line with our neighbors to the south and to the east. I have recently returned from the State of Washington where the Puget Sound Light and Power serves. In homes that I have visited at Coupe ville, and Mt. Manitoba Hydro, farmers on many farms with deep freezers, oil furnaces, light in their houses and barns and also motors, have service delivered a half in their and three quarters of a mile apart, yet they pay less than I do in the city of Victoria. Yet we are led to believe the power potential in our province is very great.

It does not look fair to saddle old customers with future capital expenses to provide for new customers and added revenue income. I appreciate that rising have increased costs, but they apply to others in the same business BURGES J. GADSDEN.

Unfair Judgment

In the address and answers to ques-tions given by Dr. Brock Chisholm (as reported on Page 13 of the Victoria Daily Times, June 9) are several things that call for comment or answer. I confine myself to one at the close of the report the comment on Dr. Albert Schweitzer and his work in Lambarene, Africa. Dr. Chisholm is reported as saying:

"He (Dr. Schweitzer) belongs to a passing generation. He has done good medical work for a limited number of people in Africa. But he has not trained the natives to pass on his medical skill. When he goes, the jungle will take over again.

That is a very superficial and unfair judgment of the service given by Dr. Schweitzer. It is true "he has not trained natives to pass on his medical skill, that is, doctors have not been trained from among "natives" to carry on. But Dr. Chisholm can be assured that when Dr. Schweitzer has to give up, his work will be carried on and that the jungle will not take ever again. There are others of kindred spirit and with enough earnest concern who will see that the work continues and progresses. And it is not true that there is no training in the Lambarene hospital Dr. Schweitzer, has helpers in caring for the sick, from among "natives" for whom such a life and service is very different from what would have been but for his training and example.

It requires only a little understanding to see that building up a medical college, where doctors are trained to carry on such work is not a possibility within the first generation or two after initiating among primitive Africans such work as that of Dr. Schweitzer.

Dr. Schweitzer is not only meeting an immediate need; his work is prepar-ing the way for further developments that others can initiate and carry on.

It is from small beginnings, but with the true Christ-like spirit in which Dr. Schweitzer has given himself to his work that great Christian missionary institutions have been built up.

Can't Take It With You

Last week I attended an N.D.E.A. meeting in Newstead Hall, and I must say that the committee representing the membership was badly let down. There was only a mere handful attending out of a possible 1,400.

Apparently, the only thing, that would draw these absentees out, would be to announce a possible reduction in wages. Then the committee would be bombarded for an emergency meeting, and there would be standing room only. There seemed to be a heated demand by a member segarding "Granting ex-tension of personal service after age 65." He remarked that all you can hear in the H.M.C.S. Dockyard these days is extension, extension, extension, when there are hundreds of young men with families in Victoria, who are on the dole, and cannot get work.

I know, of no organization in Victoria. with so much wealth "per capita" as what there is in the Dockyard. The wealth includes fully equipped farms on the Prairie, and local farms, rented houses in the city, hotels, etc., etc., and cars costing $3,000-$4,000. I also have an idea that there may be a few, buying oats for the ponies.

Evidently they don't read the "Green And yet it is often people who can afford to keep themselves who are asking for extensions.

Sometime ago I read an article in the Reader's Digest which stated that the ge of 67 was the average age of page ing away for men in the U.S.A. This age just about coincides with the men in the Dockyard, who have received ex-tensions. I would say that these men started working when they were 14 years old. In other words, they have been working 50 years. So why ask for an extension at 65 if the average age of pass ing on is 67?

Surely to goodness a man is entitled to two years, seeing this world before he sees the next. Finally I am not drum-ming up business for the friendly undertaker but will say you can't take it with you, brother, and so when you reach the age of 65, just think of the young fellows, with a family, coming along. He needs a job.

Still, aversion or no aversion, I'm about to become a statistic and the only thing left to me is to try to become a good one. It's not too easy.

EVALUATION

"The trouble with you," says the boss of our house with her questionnaire in mind, "is that you don't give a hoot how the place looks. Here I work myself to the bone keeping it clean inside and what do you do?

Read a western.
Oh, sure. Ohee you painted the outside.
That's right and I'll never forget it. Did you ever give the brush you borrowed back to Sir James Douglas?

That's not all. I bend my back and plant flowers, weed the borders, trim the awn edges. And what do you do? You take off down to the vegetable plot with a shovel over your shoulders, dig for a while and when you have a can full of worms you're off in that outboard fishing? Yes sir. You dig, all right. You dig in the same place because you keep it moist for your bait and you let the jungle reclaim the rest of

"And have you noticed the two cracked windows on the south recently? I thought when I put adhesive tape over them to keep out the draft it would shame you into doing something. Did it? Why certainly it did. You look at the front of the house and sing. T've grown accustomed to her face."

YOU GET USED TO IT

"Buster, you've grown acc much it breaks my heart. accustomed to that patch of new plaster in the kitchen you were going to paint seven months ago. You've grown accustomed to the loose board on the front verandah. You've grown accustomed to driving in another shingle nail when the back stoop nearly collapses and lets you down.
"You've grown accustomed to looking at that box of bathroom tiles still unpacked in your closet. Do you ever intend to cement them down where they belong, or are you keeping them to play hop-scotch?"

A man can take only so much of this assessment. Then he picks up his hat—if he owns one, and I don't—slams it on his head, opens the front door and takes his wife to dinner. A good enough dinner out will improve your wife's assessment of you It may even help her to forget the depreciation of real estate for which your neglect is held accountable. But you don't have to worry too much about evaluation have to worry too much about evaluation there. The municipal assessor, who should understand those things will be around in time to boost its value again.

Next to weighing yourself for airmail, nothing gives you a more exaggerated idea of value than the assessor. Maybe the hoss of our house ought to have a chat with him before she fills in that form.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

Reading and Writing

NEW YORK-Seven hundred million people—over two-fifths of mankind—are illiterate and United Nations officials say this number may be increasing. This is the age when Western people take universal literacy for granted but in half the countries of the world, in spite of vigorous education campaigns, there is reason to believe that the numbers of illiterates are actually increasing.

UN officials say that, although the rate of illiteracy is dropping steadily, the world population is rising so rapidly that the actual number of illiterate people may be rising. Figures for Russia are particularly impressive and the much-publicized Russian standard of education looks even more spectacular when it's considered that at the turn of the century 76 per cent of the population was illiterate. Lenin wrote:

"No other country Europe remains as wild as Russia, the masses of which have been so despoiled of education, light and knowledge." Today the Russians claim that iiiliteracy has been wiped out in their country by the biggest education campaign in history and they say that 50,400,000 persons, one person out of four, is engaged in study of one kind or another. The number of libraries has increased by 147,000 during the past 10 years and now exceeds 400,000 so that there is now one library for every 500 Russian citizens. A Russian official told me that his country publishes the works of something like 75,000 authors annually. This compared, he said, with less than 15,000 in Britain, one of the most literate countries in the Western world.

SPECTACULAR

The Russian example is undeniably spectacular although some countries might question whether, by their standards, illiteracy has completely wiped out. The difficulty is that there is no standard definition of literacy but it's commonly understood to mean the ability to read and write simple sentences. Spectacular though the Russian education triumph is, it's hard to imagine that everyone in Russia has the ability to read and write simple sentences, especially elderly people in the semi-nomadic tribes of Asiatic Russian and the Arctic. However, by any standards the Russians have achieved a great triumph, perhaps more important in the long run than their Sputnik triumph.

Illiteracy in North America is between 4 and 5 per cent, far higher than for Russia or for most of Europe. Illiteracy in northern and western Europe is between 1 and 2 per cent and in central Europe between 2 and 3 per cent. For southern Europe the rate rises sharply to 19-20 per cent.

Oceania, the island of the Pacific Ocean are places where many people would expect to find native peoples living in idyllic ignor-ance but, on the contrary, the islands have the world's lowest rate of illiteracy for any major area of the world, a mere 1 per cent.

The explanation seems to be that most of the islands are small, making it relatively easy for the people to get their children to schools. Missionaries have long been active islands and must be given much credit for the rate of literacy.

CONTRAST-

India has one of the highest rates of illiteracy of the major countries listed.—71 per cent for males and 92 per cent for females. In Egypt 69 per cent of males are illiterate and 91 per cent of more This contrast between male and female education is fairly general although there are some countries where women are more knowledgeable. In Cuba, for example, 24 per cent of men can't read but only 20 per cent of women. In western Samoa only 6 per cent of females can't read as compared with 23 per cent of men, the United States farm areas, 7.1 per of men can't read as compared with 4.1 per

A report by UNESCO, the UN Education and Scientific Council, points out that a direct comparison can be made between education and income. As you would expect, the well-educated countries of the world have by far the highest income. What is more interesting is the fact that, in the welleducated countries, wealth is better distributed and the differences between the rich and the poor are becoming less,

DOMINION DAY DRESSED UP BY OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)-Plans for a regular annual dressed up Dominion Day celebration on Parliament Hill were announced Thursday by the government.

Governor-General Massey has consented to attend a trooping of the color ceremony on Parliament's front lawn and there will be a band concert and fireworks in the evening, State Secretary Courtemanche announced.

The decision to make much more of the July 1 holiday falling on a Tuesday this year-conforms with a 90year-old proclamation which in 1868 called on all Canadians to join in the "due and proper celebrations of the anniversary of Confederation.'

announcement also said that Parliament will continue to sit on Dominion Day.

feeding of flowering pot plants is recommended to commence as they come into flower or as flower spikes appear. The soil contains by this time too little nourishment to support con-tinued bloom. Supplemental feedings are in order.

Remembering that growth must be gradual if it is to be sturdy, the recommendations are for weak feedings.

One teaspoon of dry fertilizer dissolved in a gallon of water may be applied at the rate of a cupful of liquid to a flowering plant in a five-inch pot.

Prepared liquid fertilizers should be used at no greater strength than advised on the Fuschias, geraniums, fibrous rooted and tuberous rooted begonias, streptocarpus (Cape-primrose), clivias and crinums when grown in pots all require this type of feeding.

The frequency of feedings will vary with the plant. Fuchsias will take weekly nourishment; geraniums in full bloom may have one every three weeks; begonias and streptocarpus every two weeks; the fleshy and bulbous rooted clivias and crinums two feedings

Tobacco, in better form than ever, is striving to make fans think only of the future as he sets his sights once more on a path that he hopes a member of Canada's B.E.G.

Tobacco's big moment is expected to come in the quarter mile race, when he goes to the starting line against at least three top competitors.

berths will be Doug Clement and Siegmar Ohleman, two Vancouver quarter milers who could upset Tobacco's plans, while Villanova's Charlie Jenkins, the 1956 Olympic 440 champion, will be out to show the Cumberland speed ster that he is still is regarded as one of the best. Tobacco beat Jenkins in the recent Centennial Games in Vancouver. The Villanova run-ner is still unhappy about his performance then.

With both Jenkins and Tobacco capable, on the basis of past performances, of go-ing under 47 seconds, it could be quite a race. Moreover, Jenkins could chase Tobacco, dominion native record.

Whatever the case, the meet cord of 49.4, also set by Tobacco, seems destined to fall. But the men won't be hogging all the limelight.

Spectators at last year's meet will still remember young Freyda Berman of Vancouver, then 16, boiling through the 100-yard dash in 103 seconds to set a Canadian midget women's record.

This year Freyda will be back to meet the top woman sprinter in Canada-Diane Matheson.

Diane holds the present Canadian women's open records of 10.8 and 24.9 seconds in the represented Canada in the 1956 Olympic Games at Melbourne.

Both girls will be fighting hard for B.E.G. berths. The chances are, again, a new Canadian record may be marked

And fans who were present at the 1956 Vancouver Island meet can't help hut remember Alice Whitry, another Meihourne competitor, belly-rollng over the high jump bar at five feet four inches, to break her own Canadian record by one-quarter of an inch. That mark still stands.

HEALTHY TICKET SALES CAN KEEP REGALS ALIVE

SASKATOON (CP)—Jim Piggott, owner of the Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals of the Western Hockey League, said Thursday night he would seriously consider operating his team in Saskatoon, under the name of Quakers, if 1,500 season tickets could be Piggott told a public meeting, called by Mayor Sid Buckwold to access Saskatoon's interest in professional hockey, he would have to give his decision at the WHL meeting in Vancouver June 16. Piggott lost money on last season's operations.

The team, which started in Regina and moved to Brandon before going to Saskatoon, would remain in the WHL if Saskatoon showed sufficient interest,

FISHING REPORT

Seasonal Run Appearing Now

The big run of salmon is apparently on its way. From Oak Bay, Saanich Inlet, Separation Point and not Creek come reports of excellent fishing and only at Qualicum does the fishing still seem slow.

At the lower end of the Island, Oak Bay is reaching its peak. Nearly every boat that went out Wednesday Thursday boated salmon,

And with the right combination of tides and weather at last, anglers were also hitting off Chatham and Discovery Islands and Ten Mile Point Among the lucky anglers were Bob Wright, who landed a 23-pounder; Keith Fenwick, with a 20-pounder, and J. Ball, who boated a 15-pound spring. As in most Island points, successful fishermen are using herring strip as their chief lure, but a few are also trying Mac Squid plugs and Tom Mack spoons. Tackle kept near the surface, with four to six ounces of weight and only 50 to 75 feet of line, is also recommended.

In-Saanich Inlet, Brentwood boathouses also report exceptional catches. Ken Wringe and A. W. Wigler picked up their limits with big ones up to 16 pounds 12 ounces. Six of the eight were over five pounds. L. Robins had a limit catch with the best up to 10½ pounds, and Mr. and Mrs. John Rose caught eight up to nine pounds.

Even the successful boats, of course, reported the big one got away.

Best hot spots in Brentwood Bay lie between Willis Point and the Boulder, and there the fish are very deep.

Added sport is being provided by good numbers of coho, ranging from four to five pounds, that have hung around since the blueback run earlier in the year.

Herring strip or minnows again are the best bet.

At the Goldstream end, too, fishing is excellent. Over 100 fish were reportedly brought in Wednesday, mostly from Chesterfield Rock or the Stone House areas, and a good number weighed in at over 13 pounds. Bill Renfrew, fishing the Stone House, topped the day's reports with a 23-pound 14-

Fish are biting all through the day, and indications are that this is the sessonal run, due to stay around for awhite *

The Separation Point report features salmon between five and six pounds in the main, but big fish are also evident.

J. Hepburn got the biggest of the week off Cherry Point, a 23-pound, 11-ounce beauty, on a cod jig.

At French Creek, chances are excellent of tying into a salmon around 10 pounds, no matter what lure is used.
Again, the seasonal run has arrived, although springs in the 20 pound range are relatively scarce as yet.

* * * Most anglers have been using approximately 10 ounces of weight with about 35 feet of line. Fishing is best in the early morning or late evening right off the mouth of French Creek.

But, while salt water angling is heading for a peak, fresh water fishermen will not have cause for so much cheer. Cowichan Lake is producing brown trout up to three aunds, as is Cowichan River, but in either case it is definitely a waiting proposition.

River Bottom is perhaps a good bet for fish up to 1½ pounds in weight.

Farther up the Island, the picture is somewhat brighter, however, as Lower Campbell Lake continues to give up fair

In both Cowichan and Lower Campbell Lakes, a Willow Leaf lake troll or a small wobbling-action spoon are worth

TERYLENE

What is a father?

When you are small, a father is two huge hands. These hands help you cross the street. They put worms on hooks better than any other hands in the world

A father is the man who sits at the head of the table. He gets two lamb chops . . . you get one. He is nice to be near when there's thunder and lightning . . . or trouble.

A father understands when you think you're too old to be kissed goodnight. He is the one who teaches you how to tie your tie, who buys your first razor, who gives you permission to take the car . . . and who comforts Mother when you aren't home on time. Sometimes he helps you fail algebra.

A father spends most of his life reaching in his pocket for money to give someone for something. His favourite words are, "Now, when I was your age ..."

A father is the person you want to be like when you grow up. You can ignore him, but you can never forget him. A father is a small boy grown taller and wiser.

A good father's wisdom is shown in many ways. And not small among them is his practice of moderation in all things. On the occasion of Father's Day, 1958, The House of Seagram says once again: True happiness springs from Moderation.

Reading and Writing

NEW. YORK-Seven hundred million people—over two-fifths of mankind—are illiterate and United Nations officials say this number may be increasing. This is the age when Western people take universal literacy for granted but in half the countries of the world, in spite of vigorous education campaigns, there is reason to believe that the numbers of illiterates are actually increasing.

UN officials say that, although the rate of illiteracy is dropping steadily, the world population is rising so rapidly that the actual number of illiterate people may be rising. Figures for Russia are particularly impressive and the much-publicized Russian standard of education looks even more spectacular when it's considered that at the turn of the century 76 per cent of the population was illiterate. Lenin wrote;

"No other country in Europe remains as wild as Russia, the masses of which have been so despoiled of education, light and knowledge." Today the Russians claim that iiiliteracy has been wiped out in their country by the biggest education campaign in history and they say that 50,400,000 persons, one person out of four, is engaged in study of one kind or another. The number of libraries has increased by 147,000 during the past 10 years and now exceeds 400,000 so that there is now one library for every 500 Russian citizens. Russian official told me that his country publishes the works of something like 75,000 authors annually. This compared, he said, with less than 15,000 in Britain, one of the most literate countries in the Western world.

SPECTACULAR

The Russian example is undeniably spec tacular although some countries might question whether, by their standards, illiteracy has completely wiped out. The difficulty is that there is no standard definition of literacy but it's commonly understood to mean the ability to read and write simple Spectacular though the Russian education triumph is, it's hard to imagine that everyone in Russia has the ability to read and write simple sentences, especially elderly people in the semi-nomadic tribes of Asiatic Russian and the Arctic. any standards the Russians have achieved a great triumph, perhaps more important in the long run than their Sputnik triumph.

Illiteracy in North America is between 4 and 5 per cent, far higher than for Russia or for most of Europe. Illiteracy in northern and western Europe is between 1 and 2 per cent and in central Europe between 2 a per cent. For southern Europe the rate rises sharply to 19-20 per cent.

Oceania, the island of the Pacific Ocean. are places where many people would expect to find native peoples living in idyllic ignorance but, on the contrary, the islands have the world's lowest rate of illiteracy for any major area of the world, a mere 1 per cent. The explanation seems to be their periods. The explanation seems to be that most of the islands are small, making it relatively easy for the people to get their children to schools. Missionaries have long been active in the islands and must be given much epedit for the rate of literacy.

CONTRAST

India has one of the highest rates of illiteracy of the major countries listed-71 per cent for males and 92 per cent for female In Egypt 69 per cent of males are illiterate and 91 per cent of women. This contrast between male and female education is fairly general although there are some countries women are more knowledgeable. In Cuba, for example, 24 per cent of men can't read but only 20 per cent of women. In western Samoa only 6 per cent of females can't read as compared with 23 per cent of men. In the United States farm areas, 7.1 per cent men can't read as compared with 4.1 per cent of women

A report by UNESCO, the UN Education and Scientific Council, points out that a direct comparison can be made between education and income. As you would expect, the well-educated countries of the world have by far the highest income. What is more interesting is the fact that, in the well-What is more educated countries, wealth is better distributed and the differences between the rich and the poor are becoming less.

Memories and Records---All Part of Big Meet

By IAN SMITH

Memories galore will be kicked around with the cin-ders and sand when the Times-YMCA track and field meet gets under way Satur-day at Victoria High School

7 p.m. . And there is little doubt that this will be a meet to furnish new memories as well as kick up great mo-ments of the past.

With the meet, ordinarily only a Vancouver Island championship event, but expanded this year into a pro-vincial British Empire Games zone trials, competition is expected to surpass all former exhibitions.

But competitors will have forget some of the great past performances in this annual

It was on this track two years ago that smooth Mike Agostini, the running machine from Trinidad, flashed 100 yards in 9.6 seconds to tie the Canadian record. Last year Agostini came back with an injured knee, but game and full of grit, managed "only" 9.7 seconds for the distance.

This year the knee is better and spectators will watch the speedy Agostini strive for a new mark. A part of every mind will be carried back to 1956, if only to compare his present and former styles.

berths will be Doug Clement and Siegmar Ohleman, two Vancouver quarter milers who could upset Tobacco's plans, while Villanova's Char-lie Jenkins, the 1956 Olympic 440 champion, will be out to show the Cumberland speed-ster that he is still is regarded as one of the best. Tobacco beat Jenkins in the Vancouver, The Villanova runner is still unhappy about his performance then.

With both Jenkins and Tobacco capable, on the basis of past performances, of go-ing under 47 seconds, it could sprinter in Canada-Diane be quite a race, Moreover, dominion native record. Whatever the case, the meet record of 49.4, also set by Tobacco, seems destined to fall. But the men won't be hog-

Both girls will be lighting hard for B.E.G. berths. The chances are, again, a new Ca-nadian record may be marked

And fans who were present at the 1956 Vancouver Island meet can't help but remember Alice Whitty, another Mel-bourne competitor, belly-rolling over the high jump bar at her own Canadian record by ne-quarter of an inch. That with jumps of six feet seven inches to his credit, conceivably could smash the B.C. native high jump record of six feet 41/4 inches in this meet, and Bob Reid, the first Canadian to jump 14-foot pole vault, will be competing against Cliff Labounty of Seattle, another 14-foot jumper. Labounty, naturally, is not eligible for a Canadian B.E.G. team berth.

The list of starry athletes, it seems, is endless.

By DAVE COWLISHAW

Victoria, faltering under the steady loss of its tourist "blood" since the CPR steamships strike, got a shot in the arm today with the arrival of Washington State Ferries Ltd. vessel from Port

The streamlined, silvercolor vessel berthed its 296 feet in inner harbor at 8.30, bringing cheers from on-lookers lining the Causeway as it disgorged 46 cars and three times that many passengers to herald resumption of the Victoria-Port Angeles

"Well, there's about $4,000. for you, Victoria." said WSF official Harold Swendson, while ferry line manager Bud Brise stood hands in his pockets and beamed happily about what he termed "more good business with our Canadian friends."

The Kalakala service is the first ferry connection to Port Angeles since CPR was struck by the Seafarers' International Union May 16. last Canadian Pacific ferry between Port Angeles and Victoria stopped seven hours before the strike deadline. The CPR service to Seattle ended May 15.

"I am 14 years old, 5 ft 5 ins. tall and weigh 122 pounds. Is this too much weight? I feel fat."

A. You are just exactly the right weight.

Q. "I have a daughter who is very much overweight. She is most unhappy about this, but since she is only 13, I feel that it is foolish to bother with reducing now.

A. I disagree strongly with you. This is an extremely self-conscious age anyway. Add to this your daughter's feeling about her overweight and the kidding she no doubt gets at school, and I feel that her adjustment to more adult life may be seriously damaged. The extra pounds may make her shy and retiring and lead to lack of popularity. It is most important for her to feel that she belongs to the gang and is liked by them. Since she has a lot of weight to lose I suggest family physician. I am sure your daughter will be most co-

Dean Hot for Jazz, Organist Cool

Should church music be sung in jazz rhythms?

A controversy flared a Christ Church Cathedral t day following an announce-ment by Dean Brian Whitlow that he will slay a jazz record of the Holy Eucharist at a meeting of the Men's Bible Study Group next Wednesday at 7.45 p.m.

"I find it quite attractive," the Dean said.

His organist, Graham Steed, finds it otherwise.
"I am sorry the church should sink so low as to use jazz for this purpose," he

Dean Whitlow said he obtained a record of the jazz Eucharist, which was made in England, after the topic was raised at a recent meeting of his Bible Study Group.

"It doesn't offend me at all." he said, "It is not nearly as bad as you might suppose; in fact it is quite attractive and it shows the Anglican Church is alive to new ideas.

"However, I don't expect many people at Christ Church will agree with me. It is certainly unlike any church music we have heard before. The Dean added that he expects a "lively discussion" when the record is played at his Bible Study Group.

"I shall welcome all opinions."

Mr. Steed, the organist, recalled that the jazz Eucharist, known as "The 20th Century Folk Mass," created a storm of controversy in Britain when he was over there last

"It has been televised once or twice and I am sorry to say it has been performed by a jazz orchestra in a London church," he said. "Whichever way you look at it, this dreadful composition is just plain jazz. It is a desecration of the Holy Communion service."

Mr. Steed admitted that the Bishop of Kensington found it "admirable."

"This goes to show that men of great scholarship and learning in spiritual values are not always judges of church music."

Dean Whitlow explained that jazz Eucharist was composed by Rev. Geoffrey Beau-mont, an East London Anglican clergyman, with the idea of attracting young people to church.

"His object was to enable them to praise God through the medium of the music they like. It was certainly not intended to be sacriligious, and I do not find it so. But that, of course, is just a personal

"It is scored for a full jazz orchestra complete with saxo-phones, fiddles, bass and drums. But the record I have is sung by a jazz choir ac-companied on a Hammond

"One criticism I have is that it makes the Creed too long. Each phrase is sung by a cantor or leader and then copated rhythm. This makes the Creed twice as long as in the regular Anglican service.

MACMILLAN

Mr. Macmillan was given three standing ovations and his 25-minute speech was interrupted 16 times by applause, twice when he spoke briefly in

"We are looking forward to increased mutual trade and

What is a father?

When you are small, a father is two huge hands. These hands help you cross the street. They put worms on hooks better than any other hands in the world.

A father is the man who sits at the head of the table. He gets two lamb chops . . . you get one. He is nice to be near when there's thunder and lightning . . . or trouble.

A father understands when you think you're too old to be kissed goodnight. He is the one who teaches you how to tie your tie, who buys your first razor, who gives you permission to take the car . . . and who comforts Mother when you aren't home on time. Sometimes he helps you fail algebra.

A father spends most of his life reaching in his pocket for money to give someone for something. His favourite words are, "Now, when I was your age . . ."

A father is the person you want to be like when you grow up. You can ignore him, but you can never forget him. A father is a small boy grown taller and wiser.

A good father's wisdom is shown in many ways. And not small among them is his practice of moderation in all things. On the occasion of Father's Day, 1958, The House of Seagram says once again: True happiness springs from Moderation.
